

ART for the SPARK

A SPARK can be defined as "a vital, animating, or activating factor." The 4th and 5th grade art club students at Florence Howard Elementary were given this definition by art teachers, Margaret Andres and Lisa Howard, from Round but Square Studios. Then, they listened to What Do You Do With An Idea? by Kobi Yamada. The students identified the things that spark them as people. They completed an abstract art to portray their "spark". After completing their individual art, they worked together to complete a canvas art (pictured below) continuing to paint with their "spark" in mind. This canvas was then cut and matted into pieces of art. Our hope is that your art purchase will place the SPARK in your homes and work places to serve as a constant reminder to continue LIGHTING THE FUSE to support the children in our community.
